

IOLE!—It's Cinco de Mayo time again at Rancho Santiago College. This year's festivities took on new meaning this week when the college expanded the event to include opportunities for Hispanics in law enforcement, medicine, journalism, art, business as well as the colorful cultural activities. Student Activities, ASB, EOPS, MEChA and community services co-sponsored three days of displays, presentations, information booths and traditional music and dance groups, May 1-3.

Pulitzer Winner Rosenberg Speaks at Journalism Day Event

by Cindy Porter
Editor in Chief

Pulitzer prize winner Howard Rosenberg delighted a large crowd of journalism students here Wednesday as a highlight to Journalism Day at Rancho Santiago College.

He was his usual witty self as he spoke to more than 400 students from high school and college journalism programs.

"A critic is a legless man that teaches running," the columnist for the Los Angeles Times quipped.

Just one week ago, Rosenberg won the Pulitzer prize for his TV critical reviews in the Times. But he said his life is no different today than a week ago. "I guess I'm just more nervous, maybe scared that every column has to be a Pulitzer Prize."

"Television critics mobilize public opinion to bring about change, a forum for venting criticism," he said. "Finding yourself writing about everything and sharing your ignorance about a lot of subjects" brings many letters in the mail.

"Everyone writes lots of letters. I especially enjoy the ones that begin, 'Dear Jerk'. I was once threatened by Manson-type letters on a column I wrote about Donny Osmond."

Rosenberg lamented that "people hate you at times and you seem to be attacked by everyone."

Will television eventually show full frontal nudity? Rosenberg responded, "TV is just reflecting society. You can turn off the set if you don't like it." Rosenberg says he disagrees with some of his reviews. "Your mood at times colors your reviews."

"Minorities are stereotyped on TV. The owners cater to the white, middle class male," he said. Television people also associate with the mean world syndrome and often make viewers terrified, literally scared to death by all the violence.

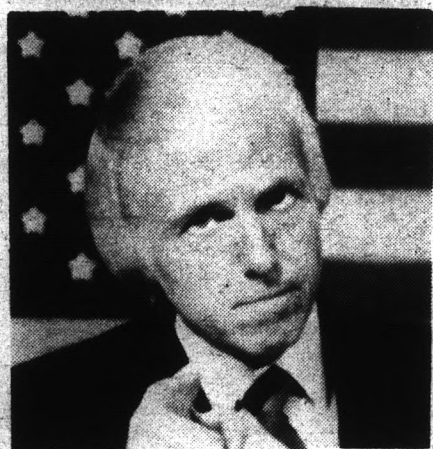

He said children's television was exploiting young people with commercials. He also called for more variety in television programming so that people have more viewing choices "than the bland stuff we have today."

Also on the program was Christian Anderson, editor of the Orange County Register newspaper, which won a Pulitzer for color photography coverage of the Olympics last summer.

"It was a thrill of a professional lifetime," Anderson said of the award.

Wally George, Bill Press Debate May 9

The great debate is set to go at Rancho Santiago College May 9!

Locking horns over the testy subject of President Reagan's Star Wars Defense proposal, will be feisty talk show host Wally George, moderator of the KDOC-TV, channel 56 in Anaheim program called "Hot Seat", and Bill Press, newscaster for KABC-Channel 7 in Los Angeles.

Faculty member Ken Turquette, coordinator of the college Speakers Forum under the Fine and Performing Arts Division, will attempt to moderate the verbal exchange. The event is expected to attract a standing-room only crowd to Phillips Hall for the 11 a.m. debate.

Human Rights Talks Set

The college Alliance for Survival Club (ASC) and Black Student Union (BSU) will co-sponsor a program on Monday, May 6 at 12 noon in U-201A on the subject of apartheid and human rights in South Africa.

The speaker will be college history professor Harold Forsythe.

Then, on Tuesday, May 7 at 1 p.m. in U-201, Alliance for Survival will host Bill Douglas of the Orange County Alliance for Survival Central American Task Force.

He will speak and present a slide show on the two weeks he spent in a Honduran refugee camp, including information on human rights conditions in Central America.

He will be followed at 2:30 by Helen Jablonski, Dept. of English at Cal State University, Fullerton, representing Amnesty International, an independent international organization which monitors human rights conditions around the world.

All events are free and open to students and the general public.

Career Day Set for May 8

by Al Falkey
Staff Writer

Rancho Santiago College will open up the campus to students and community business leaders during the annual Career Day '85 on May 8.

Career Day is scheduled from 9:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. and from 5:30-8:00 p.m. on the mall at the Santa Ana campus. There will be at least 32 employers represented by about 64 public relations and personnel representatives.

According to Joe Dias, placement officer, "About 60 to 65 percent of the day's activity will involve prescreening of applicants. Others will share information on company needs and other career related information."

Represented will be RSCCD, the city of Santa Ana, the county of Orange, San Jose Police Department, the California Highway Patrol, and the U.S. Postal Service.

Also represented will be organizations from the business and manufacturing industries. Knott's Berry Farm, Kraft Inc. and Rockwell International are just a few of the many companies taking part.

Dias added, "Since each person has an individual story, this is an opportunity to discover over 60 different ways to get the job you want."

Representatives from the following companies will be on the campus mall between 9:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. and again from 5 p.m.-8 p.m. to share information, answer questions and possibly prescreen students interested in employment. These include:

R.S.C.C.D., Rancho Santiago College, City of Santa Ana, Automobile Club of Santa Ana, Bullocks, Tempsamerica, Knott's Berry Farm, County of Orange and Farmers Insurance Group.

U.S. Postal Service, Home Federal Savings, Coldwell Bankers, California Highway Patrol, Kraft Inc., Southland Corporation, and Kinney Shoe Corp.

Rockwell International, Southern California Edison, Beatrice Hunt-Wesson, Pacific Bell, Price Waterhouse, American Lock & Supply, Volt Temp. Services and San Jose Police Department.

Oriflame International, TOD Temporary, Security Pacific Bank, Thomas Temp., Downey Comm. Hospital, A.L. Williams, Temp Associates, and Defense Contract Admin.

College Sponsors Three International Travel Tours

by Larry Case
Staff Writer

The community services department at Rancho Santiago College will sponsor a series of international travel tours during the fall semester at prices the tour organizer claims "are out of this world."

They have been personally designed by the college's Travel and Tourism Department Chairman and former professional tour manager, Barry Resnick.

The first tour is a four-country Scandinavia holiday Sept. 5-19, 1985, set at a cost of $1,864. The two-week sightseeing tour of Scandinavia will visit eight Scandinavian cities in four countries and includes two deluxe cruises. Helsinki, Copenhagen, Oslo and Stockholm are just a few of the cities on the tour.

The scenic wonders of Norway's fjord country and Finland's lake district (with a stay at Aulanko National Park) are all part of the itinerary.

The second tour takes participants on a Hong Kong Christmas shopping tour Dec. 9-16, 1985 for $928.

Resnick will personally escort this tour and he will direct everyone to the bargains.

Custom-made clothing and shoes, handcrafted jewelry, watches and cameras are just some of the bargain items.

Participants will be the guest of the New Prince Hotel which is located in the Kowloon area—at the heart of the city. The Prince Hotel is just two years old and is part of the internationally-known Peninsula Group.

American breakfast is included each day in Hong Kong along with a comprehensive city sightseeing tour and a visit to Victoria Park with lunch.

Opportunities will be available to take an excursion to the People's Republic of China or to

GOP Pushes Human Rights

The Collegiate Republican Club will present a forum "For A Free Afghanistan" today (Friday, May 3) at 12 noon in C-104 lecture hall.

Guest speakers will include Congresswoman Bobbi Fiedler, Senator Ed Davis, Amar Mohammed, Dr. William Allen, Michael Utter and Akbar Mohammed.

Co-sponsoring the event is the Orange County Federated Republican Women, Lynn Turner, president. Nancy Rankin is forum chairman assisted by Beth Lewis.

Purpose of the forum, according to Randy Gast, president of the College Republicans, is to create a groundswell of public opinion to impress upon the Congress and American people, the urgent need for medical aid, food, clothing and other materials vital to the country's survival.

the Portugese colony of Macau.

Extended programs are also available to Bangkok, Singapore, Tokyo and other Orient cities.

Tour three takes in Helsinki and Leningrad Jan. 5-12, 1986 for only $948.

Resnick will be escorting this tour to Helsinki and Leningrad. The tour will fly directly (via the Polar route) to Helsinki, Finland aboard a Finnair wide-body jet.

The Way To Success

"I was a classic case of misdiagnosis," Keith Blanchard said of his childhood illness.

"When I first started school, they said I had dyslexia (inability to read). Actually, the problem was I was ambidextrous," Blanchard said.

"Then, they claimed I was mentally retarded. Actually I was hyperactive. Later they accused me of having learning difficulties.

"Actually I had extreme astigmatism with nearsightedness and was legally blind."

Blanchard's early experiences with education were not inspiring. His "dyslexia" disappeared when he was given time to decide that he is left-handed.

Born Sept. 10, 1957 in Concord, Mass. he moved with his parents and three older brothers to Long Beach, when he was one year old. Six years later they moved to Orange County.

At age 15, this self-described "Poindexter" (coke-bottle glasses, baggy pants and shirts, bad posture, and greasy hair) started playing guitar and taking drugs.

He ended up in juvenile hall at the Albert Sitton Home. After one month ther Blanchard became a Christian. He quit the drugs, but has continued with rock and roll.

Blanchard completed high school, but due to his early experiences with education did not consider himself the "student type". A supervisor at Irvine Electronics convinced him to take a six-week mini-course in BASIC programming at Santa Ana College and he was "hooked".

Deciding he liked school he began taking classes in music and electronics, two favorite subjects, and for exercise began taking Kung-Fu. "I had the physical prowess and cat-like reflexes necessary to break my left foot on a rubber mat." Blanchard said.

Last year he received his certificate in electronics which has led to three different jobs—each one a step up in his chosen career field. He is currently at SAC to earn his A.A. degree in electronics.

According to Blanchard, "I've discovered that the electronics program at SAC accurately reflects what you're expected to know when you leave college and enter the industry."

Blanchard's interests in electronics and music has also led to part-time work with Don Gerber of Soundboard Concert Systems, most recently at the Stryper concert at the Anaheim Convention Center.

Blanchard is considering the recording arts program at Goldenwest College and will probably seek a bachelor's in electronics later. He works as a sound man for his church and is lead guitarist in a Christian rock band. Married for two years, he and his wife Carolyn are expecting their second child in June.

Asked his opinion of SAC Blanchard said, "There are few things I have done in my life that I can look back on and say they were unquestionably correct. One was becoming a Christian, another was marrying Carolyn, and another was attending Santa Ana College."

Students React

by Barney Thompson
Staff Writer

Student anti-apartheid coalitions have sprung up throughout the U.S., California, and apparently, are heading for the community college level.

Not since the Vietnam war days has this country seen a vast number of students proclaim, "Get out" ...and this time they're right.

The Anti-Apartheid Coalition of the University of California at Santa Cruz is just one of many such coalitions that have followed the lead set by Columbia University.

The protests started when students found out their campuses have money, indirectly, invested in South Africa. The students want their schools and the United States to break off support of this racist regime.

The universities invest in corporations and banks which do business with South Africa. American corporations invest heavily in South Africa and supply its government with technology, fuel, weapons and other resources vital to its economy.

Schools such as Cornell, Northwestern, Rutgers, Tufts and UC Santa Cruz have all joined in a solidarity movement to show support for these students which decided to make a stand for human rights and against legalized oppression.

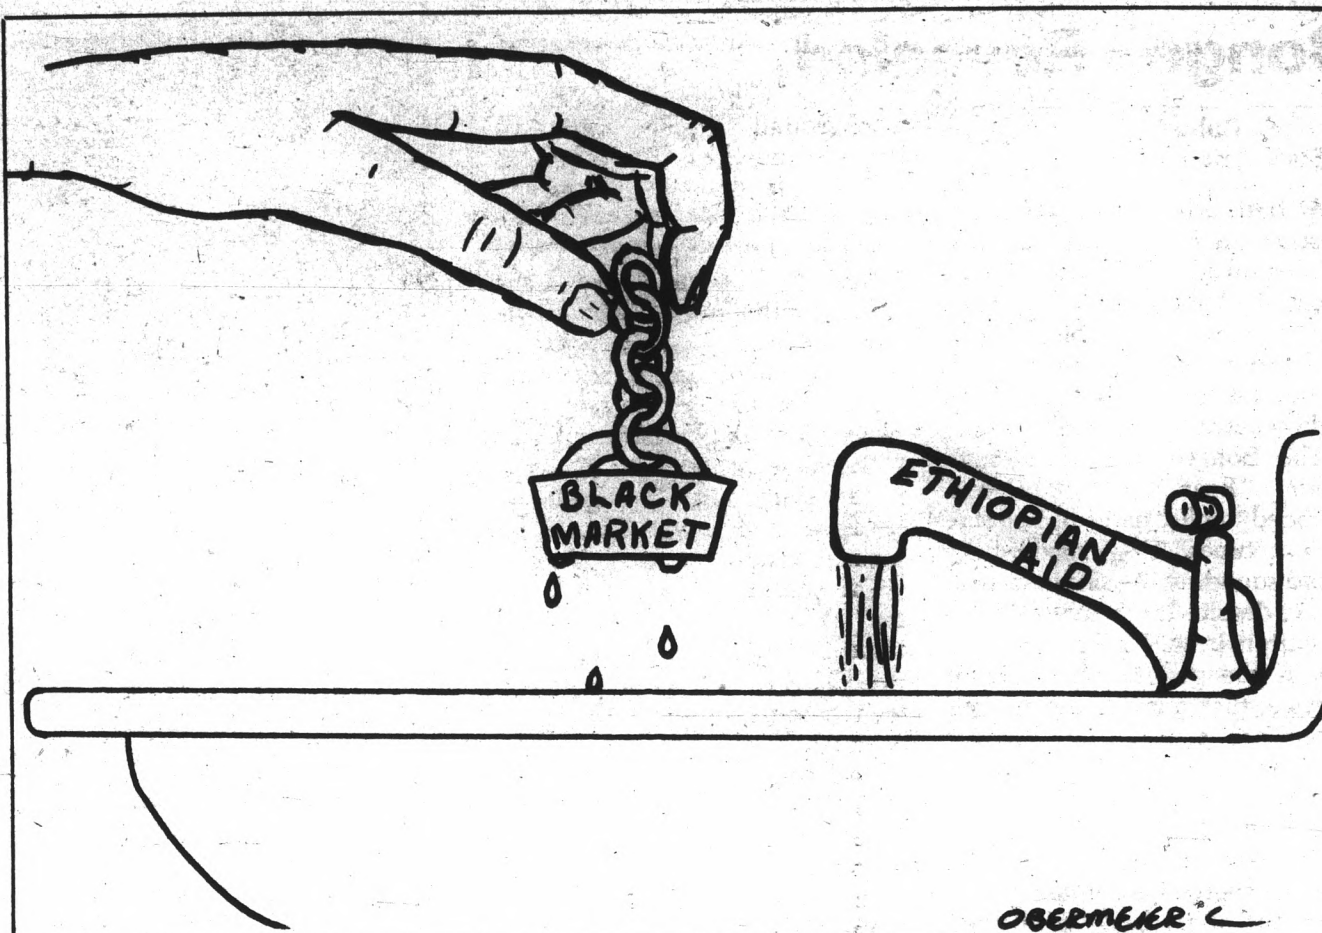

As the world sings "We are the World," the people of South Africa sing, "Aren't We People Too?"

The apartheid government of South Africa is ghastly inhumane, threatens the human rights of all Africa and unsettles those countries with human rights such as the U.S.

How can the U.S. support such an inhumane government as South Africa? How can the U.S. call El Salvador an oppressor of human rights? How can the United States accept apartheid in South Africa and then boycott the 1980 Summer Olympics because of Soviet action in Afghanistan? How can the United States support freedom fighters around the world and then turn its back on South Africa?

Students Against Apartheid at UC Santa Cruz have formed a committee dedicated to inform all who are interested in the movement. "We are willing to help you. We can give you support, advice and education. We are willing to answer your questions," states the coalition. If you would like to get more information on the "movement," the phone number is (408) 425-9266.

There are no simple answers to the problem, just opinions and observations. One thing is clear, however, and that is if a solution is not found quickly, South Africa is going to turn into a massive blood bath...worse than it is now. What side will the United States be on?

Viet Nam: 10 Years Later

by Bach Ton
Staff Writer

Ten years ago, Saigon fell to the advancing North Vietnamese—an event that marked the end of South Vietnam as a nation and finale to the American efforts to hold the line on Communism in Indochina. Vietnam was America's longest war. The 10th anniversary of the fall of Saigon is a complicated and emotional occasion. The United States lost the war but it had withdrawn its forces when the end came.

The war destroyed many lives, both American and Vietnamese. The vents shattered the American faith in holding the line on Communism. It broke old molds and invented new movements, including high-tech ideas that might have stifled traditional lines of authority.

In the decade since the Communists took over, another million have fled the country, sneaking through the bush to Kampuchea and Thailand or huddling it in leaky boats headed into the treacherous South China Sea.

There are about 700,000 Indochinese who have come to America, like so many other immigrants and refugees from around the world. They seek to make a living here, a new life.

About 90,000 Vietnamese make Orange County their home today. Some of them are very successful with their goals. They dream of a future for their children.

Parents run shops, selling jewelry and herbs. They send packages of food to their families in Ho Chi Minh City (formerly Saigon). They think about the past a lot, and can't imagine how their families live under Communism. They wonder how long their friends and relatives will have to wait for peace and freedom again.

Letters to the el Don Editor

el Don,

Nothing stays the same...or so it seems in the case of Santa Ana College. As a graduating sophomore from the Class of 1985, I transferred to a university mid-semester. I was confident that Santa Ana College would still be there when I returned home for commencement. Yet, that's not the case.

Over spring break, I returned home to hear from friends still attending SAC that the name had been changed. "Why?" I asked, expecting a valid answer. "Because," they told me, "the Board of Trustees feels that without it, there may be a case of 'white flight' to the new Orange campus." Well, ask a stupid question, get a stupid answer.

I can't say this action comes totally unexpected. As a two-year member of SAC student government, I was fortunate enough to sit in on some of the accreditation committee meetings. At one of these meetings, the student cabinet was questioned on their opinions of the college. Many of the questions asked revolved around the issue of minority students. We were asked if we thought there was a "drive by" factor at the college, meaning, did we feel because of the location of the college that many students would just drive by enroute to a college in a better area. This question I found quite irritating. To prove my irritation, I replied that I, a Caucasian student, raised in Santa Ana and proud of it, initially registered at Orange Coast College. I only did this to be with more of the friends I graduated with. After one semester, I saw the error of my ways. Santa Ana College is more academically oriented. So I transferred, and I'm sure I am only one of many.

The point I'm trying to make is why, why is there such an issue made of a college with a minority population? If the college is educating all of its students adequately, what difference does it make what color their skin is? Oh yes, I forgot—there's politics involved, isn't there? Yes, our Board of Trustees are afraid of "white flight."

It's a shame that the Board must cater to the insecurities of the bigwigs on the hill who are too embarrassed to associate themselves with the Santa Ana image. What's more of a shame is the fact that the Board didn't even listen to the pleas of the students who opposed their decision, nor did they notify the alumni or the community which Santa Ana College is supposed to represent; hence, the name community college.

Santa Ana College is full of tradition, seventy years of it. It would seem that the satellite campus would be proud to be associated with the Santa Ana name. There is much to be proud of, especially since the college is located in the "All-American City."

It's obvious that the Board of Trustees is nothing more than a puppet for a larger, more wealthy constituency. Otherwise, they would have gone about this decision in a more professional manner. Whatever the case, the decision was made long before the vote was taken. What a pity: they sold out an excellent academic institution and a city's image for totally irrelevant reasons.

I do wish to commend the Board though. I mean, they've definitely given the essence of a democratic system new meaning—or have they?

Bongos Revealed

by Chris Ruback
Staff Writer

At first, a listener might easily mistake the Bongos with A Flock of Seagulls. The voice of the Bongos' lead singer Richard Barone closely resembles that of Mike Score of the Seagulls. But, fortunately for the Bongos, that's right where the similarities end.

The Bongos' first full-length album, "Beat Hotel", is a well-rounded collection of catchy upbeat tunes. They successfully avoid sounding the same on each track, despite the heavy reliance on guitars in each song.

It is the guitar, according to Barone, that most of the group's songs are written on. "I just think the guitar is the most expressive instrument there is," says Richard.

The New Jersey-born quartet gets a progressive sounding product out of its basic configuration of two guitars (Barone and James Mastro), bass (Rob Norris), and a drum (Frank Gianini).

Lyrics on "Beat Hotel", which are written primarily by Barone, shows a literate side to groups' background, along with its amusement with nihilism.

The title track of the album explores the drug-induced book "Naked Lunch", which was written by William S. Burroughs in 1959. Burroughs, who wrote the book from the Beat Hotel in Paris, is known as the most extreme influence of the "beat generation" in the 1950's.

Barone even goes as far as imitating Burroughs' "cut up" technique of writing in several of the album's songs.

On another song off the platter, "Brave New World," Barone again borrows an anarchic book's title. This time, it's Aldous Huxley's pale prediction of the 25th century.

Undoubtedly, if the Eurythmics, David Bowie and Van Halen hadn't already released the title, "1984" would have also been on the Bongos' album.

The only attribute that A Flock of Seagulls have, that the Bongos might desire right now, is the public exposure. However, with a video and a tour in the works, the Bongos might not be lacking for exposure much longer.

BONGOS—This new band's popularity isn't resounding, but is taking off rapidly.

Sports Line: Records Are Only Made To Be Broken

by Richard Lind
Sports Editor

So be it. The Rancho Santiago College Dons baseball team is out of the playoff picture for the year.

Fortunately, the Dons still have a chance to do some good.

They have a shot at breaking a team record—the most victories in a season.

The old record stands at 29 victories, won in 1980 under then coach Jim Reach. The Dons went 29-9 overall, 12-6 in conference and finished in second place. The Dons need to take all of their nine remaining games to beat that.

In addition, Coach Don Sneddon has the potential to become only the third coach in Rancho Santiago history to win 100 games in a coaching career. He currently has 99.

Sneddon also has the most victories of any coach in his first four years as a head coach (99) though he has yet to attain a first place finish in the competitive South Coast Conference.

Last, but not least, is the record that generated the most excitement this year—homeruns.

The homerun record is 10 set by Ed Amelung in 1979. There are now three players who could break it. Ruben Gonzales has 10 four-baggers now and needs only one more to break the record. Vince Schinholster and Gary Thomason have hit seven home runs each.

MAYBE NEXT YEAR—Rancho Santiago baseball coach Don Sneddon has had to make the best of a disappointing season.

Then, of course, there is the new record set by the Dons. They have already hit the most homeruns in a single season, 42. This shatters the old mark of 35 set in 1984.

Special thanks to Neil Evans, our statistician, for giving the information about the most victories in a season.

Women's Tennis Ends Mediocre at 7-7

by Linda Barquera
Staff Writer

Rancho Santiago's women's tennis team finished with a mediocre season, a 7-7 record.

"We had a mediocre season this year," Women's Tennis coach Carolyn Canada said.

"We came up against tough competition," Canada said, "The team improved 100 percent, and played up to their full capabilities."

Though the team as a whole improved 100 percent it wasn't enough to beat the stiffest competition this year, Orange Coast.

"Orange Coast has been in first place for six or seven years," said Canada.

"The individual players made an awesome improvement, but their opponents were always a little more experienced or just better players," Canada added.

Although the women's team was average in this year's season, they managed to pull through for a fourth place tie in the district.

The California Angels are No. 1 once again.

Last Wednesday, the Angels proved themselves worthy of halos as they defeated the Boston Red Sox 3-2 in 15 innings.

The Angels as of Wednesday had the best record in the major leagues. They are 14-7.

Their top four players included Debbie Rodgers, who worked hard and improved from the number two position to number one position.

"No one has been able to take her place," said coach Canada.

Lisa Goodman placed second, Marie Kirby and Lynn McAuffe placed third and fourth on the team.

"These girls are the most consistent players, because they come to practice on time," Canada said.

Coach Canada's record for the women's tennis team also shows a somewhat mediocre record.

"The first year I coached here we came in third place. Last year we came in second plus we got to go to the state playoffs. This year we placed fourth."

"This is a good group to work with," Canada said, "If they played as good as they looked we'd be awesome and in first place."

Let's Hope It's Over...

"It's never over until it's over."

That is a Yogi Berra proverb and Yogi is right.

He was replaced last week by Billy Martin.

Martin, on the first day of his arrival as Yankee skipper, told his players that the reason Yogi was fired was because they weren't winning. Martin is now 0-2 on the year as Yankee manager.

Softball Season Ends

by Alan Abair
Staff Writer

The Rancho Santiago College softball team will close out its South Coast Conference schedule today with a 3 p.m. contest at Orange Coast.

This could turn out to be a very important game. First place Fullerton has already clinched a tie for the conference championship. If the Hornets lose to Mr. San Antonio this week, the Dons will be playing the Pirates today with a chance to move into a first place tie.

Nonetheless, SAC will be in the Southern California Sectionals in two weeks at Golden West College.

The Dons defeated Fullerton last Friday, 3-1, to pull within one game of the leaders. Alani Silva pitched a one-hitter and improved her record to 17-1.

On Tuesday, SAC scored a 2-0 victory over Moorpark. With the win, the Dons improved their record to 31-2 which ties a school record for most wins in a season.

Chris Makimoto turned in another brilliant performance in the win. The freshman righthander pitched a three-hitter to up her record to 14-1. She has now given up only one earned run 99 innings pitched for an 0.77 ERA.

"I expected her to be a very good player," said coach Jim Reach of Makimoto. "She's been a key player for us. She's pitched very well."

Makimoto, 19, was an all-Orange League player for four years at Savana High.

Shaw To Bakersfield

Ryan Shaw, the 6-5 sophomore forward from the Dons basketball team, signed a letter of intent on April 10 to attend and play basketball for Cal St. Bakersfield.

Shaw, a communications major, said, "One of the reasons I decided on Bakersfield was their reputation in the field of communications."

"I feel pretty good. Most colleges look for high school seniors so they can develop into their own system."

Shaw led the Dons in rebounds with a 9.0 per game average and also pitched in 12.4 points per game.

When asked about the readjustment of going to Bakersfield, Shaw responded, "It will be a good experience. It will be a big change compared to where I grew up."

Dons Still Struggling

by Neil Evans

The Rancho Santiago Dons went back to their losing ways, dropping their last two games.

After an embarrassing 13-4 rout at the hands of Saddleback, the Dons lost a heartbreaker to Golden West, 6-4.

Friday, May 3, 1985

Mike Schwabe (8-5) was pitching a fine game, taking a 4-3 lead into the 8th inning. But back-to-back singles put runners on 1st and 3rd with no outs and bringing the Rustlers' power hitting Keith Kaub to the plate.

Kaub, who stands in at 6-4 and weights 220 pounds, crushed the first pitch over the left-centerfield fence to give Golden West the victory.

For RSC, the losses sent their record to 8-8 in South Coast Conference play and 21-10 overall.

Schinholster Signs

by Neil Evans
Staff Writer

Shortstop Vince Schinholster of the Rancho Santiago Baseball team signed a letter of intent with Arizona State University.

Schinholster, a sophomore originally from Loara High School, is currently hitting .406 with 7 homeruns and 40 RBI.

While a letter of intent is not a 100 percent commitment, Schinholster won't make a final decision until negotiations have ended with the Baltimore Orioles who drafted him in the winter draft.

Even, then Schinholster might wait until the June-Summer drafts have ended before attending ASU.

"She's extremely intelligent. She's a very, very valuable player. She's given Alani the freedom to rest."

Nagging injuries are starting to mount on the team. Silva has a bruised knee. Outfielder Lesa Godrey is bothered by a knee which she had surgery on last year. First baseman Kelly Winn has a leg stress fracture. Outfielder Dizzy Yamada has a slight shoulder separation in her throwing arm. Second baseman Tricia Saxton has missed 11 games with an ankle sprain. Denise Rizzo is suffering from hip problems.

These injuries are not the type that will keep them out of the lineup but they are hampering their play.
